

Sharing Worldviews: Language Disclaimer

One of the greatest aspects of our international project and the additional qualification is that we have the chance to experience encounters with individuals from all over the world.

One obstacle we must overcome in order to engage with each other is language.

Therefore, we decided to use English as the language that we use during our various encounters. This is the language most of us have in common.

I want to emphasise that most of us are non-native English speakers, and we are simply making use of the language as a tool of communication. This is why we appreciate your courage and openness to use a foreign language and hope that all of us will get more comfortable with it as time goes by.

It is of great importance that none of you feels judged or examined language-wise. This is a safe and positive learning environment, and we are all sitting in the same boat.

Here are some tips to make it easier for you to use English and to boost your comfortability and confidence:

- Make use of the translation tool: deepl.com
- Prepare texts and small speeches with deepl.com (or any other translator)
- Make notes of the things you would like to say
- Don't be afraid to make mistakes. As long as the others understand what you want to say, you are fine

- Nobody's perfect, and nobody expects your English to be either.
